CONGRESSMAN COOPER HAS AIDED DEMOCRATS' CAUSE

WISCONSIN MEN BOLTED THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS LAST NIGHT.

MADE AN ADDRESS TODAY

Spoke in Congress This Morning Saying That Democrats Should Name Own Committee.

Washington, Jan. 20.—All Washington was agog today with the bolt of the four Wisconsin congressmen last night and the action of Congressman Cooper of the First Wisconsin district in openly espousing the democratic side of the interesting discussion as to the naming of the special committee to investigate the Hallinger-Pinchot matter.

It was announced again today when Congressman Cooper, one of the bolters from last night's caucus, on the floor of the house, spoke in favor of the right of the democrats in congress in naming their own party members of the committee. Mr. Cooper's attitude is a puzzle to his closest friends owing to the fact that he has always been considered a warm personal friend of the president's and is now in open rupture with his plans.

Aiding Mr. Cooper in his fight were Cary of Milwaukee, Lankford and Nelson of the Second district, and those men with two Minnesota congressmen walked out of the conference last evening.

The caucus last night named the congressional committee that will investigate the Hallinger-Pinchot charges, and chose Representatives McCall of Massachusetts, Olmstead of Pennsylvania, Denby of Michigan, and Madison of Kansas, republicans, and James of Kentucky, and Lloyd of Missouri, democrats.

The caucus named the house side of the Hallinger-Pinchot committee and incidentally rejected Rainey of Illinois, one of the two democrats selected by the democratic caucus last Saturday night as the house minority representation on the investigating committee.

The six men selected include three "regular" republicans, McCall of Massachusetts, Olmstead of Pennsylvania, and Denby of Michigan, one "insurgent" republican, Madison of Kansas, and two democrats, James of Kentucky, and Lloyd of Missouri.

Rainey of Illinois, who with James, was named by the democratic caucus last Saturday night, was rejected by the caucus of the majority and Lloyd was named in his stead.

The caucus lasted three hours, and while characterized by considerable acrimony, was a good deal more peaceful than most members had expected.

Against Rainey was cited activity in "stirring up trouble for the republican administration in Panama canal matters."

As a preliminary to the regular session of the house this morning, the democratic members held a caucus and decided to stand by their regular caucus nominees.

It was expected last night that Lloyd, who was substituted for Rainey of Illinois, would refuse to serve and this action settled the matter.

When the house met the republican caucus members for the committee were presented. Lloyd's name appeared in place of Rainey as one of the democratic members. Lloyd immediately announced he would not serve and a motion was made to substitute the name of Rainey for that of Lloyd, which was lost by a vote of 192 to 147.

Then came the vote on the selection of the committee and the regular list of the republican caucus nominees was passed by a vote of 186 to 145, many of the insurgents voting with the democrats on the matter and otherwise identifying themselves with this faction.

It was then that Congressman Cooper made his speech in behalf of the democratic right to name their own members of the committee.

It was expected after his action last night that he would stand with the democrats and his speech was no surprise.

WILL TRY STUDENT GOVERNMENT PLAN

Wisconsin First University to Allow Undergraduates to Settle Matters of Discipline.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—The University of Wisconsin is the first university in the country to have a system of self-government in all matters of discipline as a result of the granting by the faculty and regents today of the students' request for a student government. Hereafter all violations of the rules and regulations of the university, growing out of the conduct of the students will be tried by the undergraduates themselves, and the penalty fixed by them accordingly.

As a result of the new system, the students have taken the responsibility for maintaining good order throughout the institution on all occasions. The student court will enforce all the rules and regulations, including the recent agreement regarding the abolishing of hazing.

Carried Out Van Hise's Idea.

Ever since President Van Hise entered upon his duties six years ago, he has maintained that self-government was the most desirable form of control in a large university like Wisconsin. From time to time he has taken steps to encourage the students in the management of their affairs. The student conference committee, which has been an important factor in expressing the student sentiment, and which has been the means of communication between the students and faculty, was organized by President Van Hise. It was through this student conference committee that hazing was abolished, and that the newly established student court was brought into being. The successful operation of the student court, it is believed, will result in the undergraduates taking over the management of practically all the affairs of the institution in which they are directly interested, and the general withdrawal of faculty control in those matters.

How Court Will Operate.

The court will be organized through the student conference committee during the coming week. It will consist of six seniors and three juniors who will be nominated by the executive committee of the student conference, two men being nominated for each of the positions. From the executive committee, nine will be chosen by the whole student conference, which represents every organization in the institution.

The student court will have original and exclusive jurisdiction in all cases of discipline of male undergraduates, except cases involving dishonesty in university work. Students charged with any violation of the rules, either by their fellow students or by members of the faculty, will be tried by this court, and if found guilty a penalty commensurate with their offense will be fixed by the student court.

This university faculty will then execute the sentence recommended by the student court, and the student will be subject to suspension or other form of discipline in accordance with the recommendation of the fellow students of the court.

If a student is dissatisfied with the findings of the student court he may appeal to the faculty, which, in turn, may demand the appeal or remand the case to the student court for a rehearing. It is generally believed, however, that the students will be satisfied with the decision of their fellows, and will not appeal to the faculty.

Will Hear Testimony.

The court which will be organized with a president and secretary will secure evidence, call witnesses, hear testimony, and in general proceed as a judicial body. As the three juniors elected will hold office for two years, the court will have a continuity of existence, and at the same time have six of the nine members seniors. As six of the nine members seniors, as the court hereafter is to be elected in May each year, it will have an opportunity to organize and familiarize itself with all the duties of office.

As wealth becomes a more and more potent factor in social life, man begins to use his wife as a lay figure upon which he can hang signs of his prosperity.—Professor Thomas of Chicago University.

GOLFERS MAY AMEND ASSOCIATION RULES AT ANNUAL MEETING

Revolt Of Western Golf Assoc. From Parent Organization May Result In Change In Constitution.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Jan. 20.—Representatives of the leading golf clubs of the country are arriving in the city to attend the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association, to be held tomorrow night at Sherry's. The meeting this year promises to be the most important the association has held since its organization sixteen years ago.

The "revolt" of the Western Golf Association has forcibly impressed upon the parent organization the necessity for changing its plan of government. It is generally believed that an amendment to the constitution will be submitted to the effect that instead of clubs retaining the voting power as associate members, the government of the organization be vested in the sectional or territorial organization and all individual clubs be relegated to the list of the non-voting allied members. The clubs that are charter members would be exempted from the list. These are the Brookline Country Club, St. Andrew's Golf Club, Chicago Golf Club and Shinnecock Hills Golf Club. Besides taking action on the proposed revision of the constitution, the meeting will make selection of the dates for the various championships this year. The Chicago Golf Club is an applicant for both the men's amateur and the open championships. The Brookline Country Club also would like to have a men's amateur tournament. The Philadelphia Cricket Club, the Atlantic City Country Club and the Fox Hills Golf Club would entertain the women's championship or any other tournament that might be awarded them, though they will make no special applications.

SUPPLY FUNDS FOR ACTOR WHO KILLED COMMON-LAW WIFE

Members Of Theatrical Profession Aid George Marion Who Shot His Spouse In A Police Station.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—No murder case in years has attracted more attention in this section than is now manifested in the case of George L. Marion, the former theatrical man whose trial for wife murder was called in the Luzerne county court this week. Theatrical people throughout the country have contributed to a fund raised to aid the defense of the accused man.

On the night of August 29 last Marion shot and instantly killed his former wife in the office of Chief of Police Long in this city. The victim was Marion's common law wife. After living together for seven years as man and wife, it is alleged the woman ran away with another man, taking her child with her. Marion tracked the couple to Wilkes-Barre and found that they had been married. He nevertheless adjusted his troubles with the woman and apparently became reconciled to the situation.

A conference to settle the matter was held in the office of the chief of police. When the two were left alone, apparently driven to desperation by the refusal of the woman to return to him, he drew a revolver and shot her dead.

The victim was formerly Miss Frances Lee, of Zion City, Ill. She and Marion had lived together in Atlantic, Detroit and other cities where Marion was employed as a hotel clerk when not engaged during the summer as a theatrical agent.

GOVERNMENT HAS A SAFE MARGIN

YESTERDAY'S VOTE SETTLES MATTERS DEFINITELY FOR UNIONISTS.

ALREADY RUNS WAY AHEAD

Has Already Elected 212 Members and the Opposition Has But 158—More Districts to Vote Yet.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Jan. 20.—The returns up to tonight show that the government's action has been sustained and that the fate of the budget is now assured. Thus far the liberals and their allies have elected 212 members and the opposition but 158. While this is a decided gain on the part of the Unionists still it shows the sentiment of the people is against the attitude of the House of Lords in rejecting the budget.

Liberals Hold North.

In northern England the Liberals generally hold the seats won in 1906. This also is true of Scotland, but the Midlands continue to go over to the party of tariff reform. The London seat which the government lost was Hackney North, where Raymond E. Greene, the Unionist candidate, defeated T. Hartley Davies, C. W. Bowdler, a prominent Laborite, retains his Deptford seat, and Sir A. Smeaton, president of the London chamber of commerce, and H. Bottenley were re-elected, the former for Central and the latter for South Hackney.

The Liberals also lost one of the boroughs of Glasgow, that of Camachie, where A. Cross suffered defeat through the intervention of a Labor candidate. The Liberal and Labor together received 5,146 votes, against 3,227 for the successful Unionist, H. J. Mackinder. The central division of Glasgow remains in the Unionist fold, re-electing C. Scott-Dickson. The Black Friars division of Glasgow is again in the Labor column, G. N. James winning with an increased majority.

Liberal Gain in Glasgow.

The borough of Tradeston goes over to the Liberals. A. Cameron Corbett, who was elected as a Unionist in 1906, but left the party on account of its opposition to the licensing bill, being elected as a Liberal. The other divisions of Glasgow, including St. Helix, which was represented by Mr. Mc. Kinnon-Wood, under secretary for foreign affairs, gave increased majorities for the government.

Nottingham, like all midland towns, shows a strong party for tariff reform, Sir H. Y. Cotton, Liberal, and A. A. Richardson, Laborite, being in the east and south divisions, respectively, although they had substantial majorities in 1906. Sir J. H. Yoxall, however, retained the west division seat for the government, but with a decreased majority.

The Liberals were defeated in the Donish borough by eight votes. The Yorkshire, Lancashire and Scottish divisions from which returns have been received continue their allegiance to the Liberal party. Kildare returned two Nationalists unopposed and Newry sends back a prominent young Nationalist in the person of J. J. Mooney, one of John E. Redmond's lieutenants, with a large majority. Sir John Stobbs, who married the daughter of the Rev. Leighton Parker of New York, again was elected representative Hawkebury for the Liberals with almost double the vote of the opposition candidate, C. P. Trevelyan, parliamentary secretary for education, who is another prominent Liberal who retained his seat. He was successful in the Eland division of Yorkshire.

Laborites Cause Liberals Losses.

The Liberals continue to lose through three-cornered fights, the Labor candidates invariably receiving just sufficient support to allow the Unionists to succeed. Already this has occurred in five constituencies, and there are twenty-four more thus threatened. The Unionists faced the same difficulty in Canterbury, J. Honan, Liberal, being opposed by an Independent Conservative besides a Liberal.

Judging from the returns received so far, if the Liberal, Laborite and Nationalist votes were grouped there would be a considerable majority for the reform of the House of Lords. Many of the seats also now in favor of some change and the Unionist leadership in the country in this direction. They have repeatedly spoken in favor of reform, and, in fact, have promised to carry out, if possible, schemes to reduce the number of hereditary peers.

It is almost impossible at the present moment to gauge popular feeling on home rule, for while Premier Asquith placed it in his platform, many Liberal candidates have been compelled to repudiate it. Practically all the Unionist candidates are tariff reformers, but some would hardly follow as far as the Chamberlainites are in this regard. It is possible that the Unionist fiscal policy would find some supporters among the Irish.

Unionists Poll Large Vote.

How closely the Unionists are fighting the following figures of the aggregate pollings in detail: Unionists' vote, 1,399,598; Liberals, 1,234,878; Laborites, 253,463; Socialists, 16,271.

Speaking of Carey, East Fife, Premier Asquith, defending the budget, ventured to predict that if the Tories and tariff reformers came into power tomorrow they would not attempt to undo what Chancellor Lloyd-George had done, but would adhere to most of his financial provisions.

Asked how he intended to improve the House of Lords, the Premier replied: "It is not proposed to improve it at all, but to limit its vote. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Carnarvon, predicted a bigger majority than 134, which the Tories got in the election of 1906."

WISCONSIN AND PROHIBITION.

The state of Wisconsin will be slow to adopt prohibition because of its mixed population as well as its great malting industry. No state in the union defends the doctrine of personal liberty more strenuously than Wisconsin, and while its citizens are law-abiding people many of them claim the right to govern themselves on questions of morals.

Habits of life result from education and environment and the Sunday beer garden is a sacred sanctuary in the minds of people who have been taught thus to regard it, and any effort to deprive them of this shrine is regarded as an attack on individual rights and personal liberty.

These conditions, however, as well as this sentiment, are largely confined to Milwaukee and a few inland cities of similar make-up in population. Most of the smaller towns, and several of the inland cities, backed by the rural population, favor prohibitory laws.

The farmer wants it for the protection of his son, the towns and villages for a better standard of morality as well as for greater safety, and the smaller cities to be freed from the menace of saloon domination and its corrupting influences.

The state today is under local option laws. Any town or city may vote dry if the voters so desire, and many of the smaller towns have voted the saloon out.

County option, which has been adopted in many of the southern and western states, enlarges the scope, and by the aid of the rural vote many of the smaller cities are transferred to the prohibition column.

This change of sentiment which has spread over the country demanding county option, is not prohibition sentiment, and there is nothing of the kind about it. It is simply a law and order sentiment developed and crystallized against a business which has no respect for law but simply obeys it through fear.

There are many men in cities like Beloit and Janesville who drink occasionally and who make no claim to total abstinence, yet who freely denounce the American saloon and its lawless methods.

These men feel that they might better drink at home, as men do in Rockford and other anti-saloon cities, than to have the city blighted by a saloon on every corner.

The saloon men themselves are largely responsible for the change of sentiment, and they have been frequently reminded of this fact by the brewers and distillers' association. The former have even gone so far as to organize a model license league which compels every member to respect the law and aid in its enforcement.

The state of Iowa is under strict regulation and infinitely better off than under the most palmy days of state prohibition, but this is because the saloon men cheerfully comply with the law and respect it.

If the same conditions existed in Wisconsin there would be no demand for more stringent regulation, but unfortunately they do not.

Word has gone out over the state that the saloons of Janesville were a prominent factor in defeating the effort recently made for better city government and the report can not be denied.

The night before election in one of these resorts an orator was proclaiming to an interested audience that the lighting company had a five-year contract and that a commission if elected would grant no license.

Both statements were false, but the crowd took another drink and turned out on mass the next day to vote against better government. The result was not only an endorsement of the present system of city government, but also an endorsement of the saloon as a controlling factor.

These are plain facts in cold type which every man recognizes, who has given the matter any attention. It is a humiliating acknowledgment that Janesville is unable to elevate its standard of business morals.

"When the people weary of this kind of domination they will find that the county is ready to cheerfully aid in changing conditions."

IS THERE A POSTAL DEFICIT?

"It should be borne in mind that what President Taft calls the deficit in the postoffice department is not real. The postoffice department is earning a large surplus profit on the business it carries on for its patrons. Even if all the publishers and private individuals withdrew their business from the postoffice department, the government would still have its own large distribution of letters and printed material to make for congress, for the departments at Washington, and for the official business of several hundred thousand people constituting the civil and military services of the United States."

"It would probably have to pay from seventy-five to a hundred million dollars a year to carry on its own postal business. Yet the books of the postoffice department do not make any account whatsoever of this vast item. It is safe to say that there is no other government in the world whose postal department is not credited with the expense it incurs for handling the business of the other departments."

"It is a scandal and a public disgrace that business should be done so loosely at Washington that no postoffice records are allowed to show what it actually costs to distribute the speeches of congressmen, the documents sent out from the agricultural and other departments, and the millions of letters relating to government business. It is just as much a matter of government expense to transport official documents as to transport troops. The war department makes record of the cost of transporting troops, but no reports of the postoffice department indicate the cost of carrying the government's own materials."

The Review of Reviews thus discusses the alleged postal deficit, which is just now disturbing the administration, and the argument used can not be gainsaid. If the department possessed the first elements of business principles it would credit every pound of deadweight matter at nine cents per pound, which is claimed to be the cost, and the deficit would soon be transformed to a substantial balance on the other side of the ledger.

The people have not known, until recently, that their public servants were so destitute of ability in conducting public business. The contractor of a private corporation who would consent to pay transportation companies three times express rates for service, would hold his job about fifteen minutes, but that is what the people's contractors are doing, and then an effort is made to shift responsibility by charging deficits to publishers.

If the government wants to play even an easy way to do it would be to pay the publishers nine cents a pound, let them make their own contracts and divide the profits.

The Saturday Evening Post is already shipping a quarter million of its circulation to points 1,000 miles away at prices less than one cent per pound because it is cheaper than the government rate.

This is a weekly publication, and there is no reason why the monthlies can not do the same thing to advantage. The shipping department of the government is a colossal failure according to its own admission.

That the American people never do anything in a half-hearted way is evidenced by the rush for membership in the National Anti-Food Trust league, with headquarters in Washington. Two hundred thousand names have already been enrolled as vegetarians until the price of meat comes down. The most healthy people in the world discovered long ago that they could live without meat. If the mania becomes contagious what will become of the American hog?

If you want to reduce the cost of living stop eating and walk. Lots of people are trying it just now and the breakfast food mills are running overtime. It is a good thing to catch up on expense while the fat is on. There's nothing like the simple life to promote health, happiness and nickels.

Wisconsin continues to lounge out of all proportion. Four of her representatives, headed by Cooper, bolted a republican caucus yesterday with nothing to be gained by the bolt.

The primary law received another jolt in the Illinois legislature yesterday, and the people of the state have occasion for congratulation.

Not Adjuncts of Happiness.

An exchange wonders how people get along without the telephone, telegraph, etc., etc. Well they did get along, and so far as anybody knows they were just as happy as are the people who are surrounded with all these "adjuncts of civilization."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A WOMAN'S TONGUE.

William Watson, the English poet, wrote a poem entitled "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," a vitriolic diatribe.

Richard Le Gallienne, in reply, wrote a poem, "The Poet With the Coward's Tongue," branding Watson's stuff as ungalant and untrue, whereat there has been talk of a hostile meeting, etc.

A woman's tongue. Men have jeered and jested at it; but have found no fault with the tongue of man, because, you know, his tongue knows naught but gentleness and favors always of scrupulous sweetness.

A woman's tongue. Whose? Your mother's, or wife's, or sister's, or daughter's, or sweetheart's? No, not of course not! Some other person's mother or wife or sister or sweetheart has the serpent's tongue.

A woman's tongue. Whose tongue was it that sang the lullaby to you in the days when, helpless and dependent, some one's loving arms held you in embrace? Who brushed away your tears and with soothing tongue hushed your childish troubles? Whose tongue prayed to God for your welfare? What tongue was it that bade you "Goodby and God bless you, my child!" when you went away? And whose tongue still prays for you?

A woman's tongue. Some woman's tongue said "Yes" when you asked her to marry you and help you and love you through all the years. Whose was it? Was it not the same tongue that sang your babies to sleep—the same tongue that, when you went to her despondent and broken, sweetly said, "Never mind, dear—try it again?"

A woman's tongue. Is it a serpent's tongue that calls you by the endearing name of "brother?" What tongue quicker to respond in defense of you, to intercede for you, to bless you, than a sister's tongue?

A woman's tongue. Does a malignant tongue say "dear daddy?" The little daughter's tongue says "papa" with its earliest accents, and the big daughter writes that you are "the finest father in all the world." Are the serpent's tongues of your flesh and blood?

A woman's tongue. Is there guile under the tongue of "the dearest girl of them all"—your sweetheart? Is hers the serpent's tongue.

What woman's tongue?

Occasional sharpness there may be; but, oh, the tender, soothing, loving accents of a woman's tongue! Only the poet with a coward's tongue could fault it.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON
(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthews Adams.)

The Tyrant's driven from his place, who ground a weary nation's face! Complete, disastrous was his fall, this man of unexampled

Nicaragua gall! He's gone to word that limbs where unmounted tyrants paw the air, and wring their teeth and gnash their eyes, and utter loud, heart-rending cries. Poor Nicaragua's chair of state most always feels some Tyrant's weight; no sooner does one Tyrant chase than another Tyrant takes his place; confounded by the people's wrath, the fleeing despots wear a path, to that dim limbo in the West, one at a time, or six abreast. And every time a Tyrant falls, we hear the people's joyous call: "At last we're free! Hooray! Hooray!"

The frowning Tyrant in the soup, the place is taken by a gent who won't oppress us worth a cent! Now sweet contentment shall abide along the whole blessed countryside; we'll use our awnings in building schools, we'll use our guns to prod the mules! And Nicaragua fairly rocks with peace for half a dozen weeks, and then the war, like Colonel Bragg stands up and springs the Tyrant gag, and all the people leave their chores, to chase the despots out of doors!

Kind Woman—"Don't you get awfully tired of doing nothing?"

Tramp—"Yes ma'am; but it's bad form to complain."

THREE BELOIT CLUBS MET LAST EVENING

Commercial Club Gathered for Annual Session and Baptist Men's and Civics Societies Enjoyed Discussions.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Beloit, Wis., Jan. 20.—The Commercial club held its annual meeting last night and elected directors and outlined work for the coming year. The members were enthusiastic over the work of the club last year. They have done much towards furthering the interests of the community. The directors will meet in a few days and elect officers. J. B. Hendley is secretary for the club. One of the notions of the club this past year was to get merchants to agree to cut out all advertising on programs and all circulars where more than one was represented. This obligation was well kept and only in one case has any member patronized programs or such advertising methods.

Prof. A. W. Burr last night spoke to the Baptist Men's club on the political crisis in England. He spent part of last year in Europe and studied the situation and gave valuable information. He thinks that the English people are living of the House of Lords.

The Civics club of the college last night discussed the short ballot which is being agitated in the east. R. K. Welsh a lawyer of Rockford, was one of the speakers who advocated the new measure. The short ballot proposed that there shall be less men elected and more appointed.

NOVEL HATRACK

Throws Out Cards When Overcoats and Hats Are Hung Upon It.

There seems to be no fault to the means which advertisers will adopt to distribute their cards or literature. In some places associations have been formed to check the decoration of landscapes by unsightly boardings, but whatever the merits of the dispute may be, there is no denying the progressiveness of the advertisers. Now comes an Oregon man with an advertising hatrack that projects

WRIGHT ON HOOK DOES IT.

The business ends of the firm using it into the hats of its patrons. Above the hook of the rack is an opening and behind this a pack of cards and a lever that picks up the topmost card. This lever is operated by movement of the hook, and when the hook is depressed, as when a hat or coat is hung upon it, the card is projected through the opening and into the hat or the visitor's hands. Such an apparatus is particularly designed for use in restaurants or other places where patrons hang up their hats and coats.

New Use for Paper.
Paper is of different thickness and pasteboards made of it have already been shown, the latter even in sheets three-quarters of an inch thick. It is as hard as wood and can be easily painted and polished. It has all the good qualities, but none of the defects of wood. The pasteboard can be used for door and window frames, architectural ornaments and all kinds of furniture.

"Reduce Your Fat."
James Mynt of Idaho was 14 years old on the first of July and weighed 190 pounds. He was so fat that the doctors feared for his life. Then he took a walk, got lost in the mountains, and was not found for a month. He had lived on roots and berries, and slept in a cave, and his weight had come down to 105 pounds. If you are too fat the remedy is to get lost. If you are not eaten up by the bears you will come out all right.

Look Out, boys!
A German professor has found that a boy in walking a mile through the streets of a town is exposed to 10,000, 100 germs and microbes that may cause his death. It seems they never to cause his death, but the only safe way for a boy to do is to remain at home and take out the ashes and aring in the coal. If he feels any danger he can black the cookstove and whitewash the collar.

A feature of the prize distribution to the children of the Portuguese Jews' schools at London, England, was the awarding of a gift of $5 to the most truthful boy and girl attending the schools.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

CHEER up. It may not be true.

For this Chit-Chat is by way of bringing a little cheer to anyone who feels that he has not been doing as good work as usual the last few days.

You see, I'm putting the moral at the beginning and keeping the tale for the end—which isn't such a bad place for a tale when you come to think of it.

A newspaperman came to me yesterday in state midway between puzzlement and delight.

"Say, Miss Cameron," he explained, "the Managing Editor called me into his office this afternoon and I thought I was going to be fired for fair."

"I know I had been doing beastly work lately. Fell down on one or two stories and didn't do that murder trial half justice. Didn't know just what was the matter with me, but seemed to be off form somehow. I thought I'd get called down at least and probably be given the blue ticket right on the spot."

"And what do you think, Miss Cameron? The Managing Editor told me that I'd been doing mighty good work and raised my pay. Say, it was all I could do to keep from telling him he was making a mistake."

All of which goes to show, of course, that you can't always tell.

In other words, we do not always know by any means when we are doing our best work.

A friend of mine who is a salesman wrote to me the other day:—"Sometimes I find my best efforts in a business way are unappreciated, while at other times I seem to get credit without deserving it."

That certainly is true, as most of us can testify from one experience or another, and while we ought not to feel elated by praise that seems undeserved to us, we can cheer ourselves up by remembering that there may be some grain of truth beyond what we realize in what our employers say.

Authors are seldom good judges of their own work. Wordsworth, for instance, was very fond of some poems which posterity has declared close masterpieces.

One's ideal should be to satisfy oneself, of course, but it is a good thing to remember when you are down in the depths that what does not satisfy your exactions may look good to someone else.

So, next time you get real blue because you think you aren't doing as good work as usual, remember other people's experiences and—

Cheer up. It may not be true.

Fads and Fashions

New York, Jan. 20.—Ladies' Fashion has once more proved her whimsicality by making a leap and landing in Russia. A perfect craze for, therefore, Russian dress has broken out and Russian styles predominate to a startling degree in women's fashions. Fur, velvet, barbaric jewels, bold embroidery and other characteristic Russian trimmings and ornamentations dominate, and Tolstoi smokes, czaravitch tunics, Cossack hats towering aloft and mink turbans enveloping the ears are features of midwinter styles.

The most notable feature of this Russian dress mode is the tunic. Everywhere the tunic predominates. It is of chiffon, or cloth of gold or silver, of jetted or beaded gauze, or net, of satin and falls over frocks of every imaginable material. Most of the evening costumes at the opera and in the theatre show tunics of one sort or another, dozens of variations being effected by the dressmakers in the long, clinging tunic line.

One of the most striking dress features of the present season in New York is the velvet blouse. It is the velvet blouse, however, that is the fashion. The velvet blouse with fur borders so fashionable just now are supposed to imitate the peasant smock affected by Tolstoi and fasten down one side of the front in the Russian fashion, with baggy ties and broad shoulders extending into the sleeves. The fur border goes all around the bottom and runs up the edge of the sleeve flaring and around the wrists of the sleeves and is usually the fashionable slant. These blouses may or may not be worn over velvet skirts, but the skirt, of whatever material, is always in the same color as the velvet blouse. Sometimes these blouses are worn over little afternoon tea frocks of cashmere or silk or percale stuff. Chiffon blouses or tunics in the style of those worn by the little czaravitch, Alexis, are worn over wool and percale dresses, though, of course, these chiffon affairs do not serve as coats, as do the velvet blouses. They are out in true Russian style, with sleeves all in one with the body of the garment and no arm seams. The skirt is cut out in a square, or straight across from shoulder to shoulder in the Russian fashion, and is finished with a band of Russian embroidery which continues down the side fastening. A belt of the embroidery coming with leather gives a snappy finish to the czaravitch tunic.

Directly traceable to Russian influence is the abbreviated "sling costume" type of dress seen now on the streets. The jaunty short skirts, bordered with fur, are American adaptations of skirting costumes worn on the Neva during the gay St. Petersburg winter season. Usually these Russian skirting suits are of velvet and the fur border is of skunk. A huge muff and turban of fur complete this fetching winter costume. It is

THE HONEST PROPRIETARY MEDICINE

has saved thousands of dollars to families who could ill afford the expense necessary to maintain the services of a physician, and have answered the purpose equally as well, and often succeeded after our best physicians have failed. Lydia E. Pinkett's Compound is one of scarcely necessary to remark that this style of costume is appropriate and becoming only to young and girlish figures and should be avoided by all elderly women, especially those of generous proportions.

The Russian dress is usually of slightly lowered neck line and abbreviated sleeve, showing from beneath a contrasting yoke and cuff, which was originally connected with the undershirt. In some of the really exquisite models, following closely their originals, the undershirt and whole under bodice are of a delicate material, over which is worn the blouse, with its belt and long tunic reaching almost to the hem of the dress proper. Handsome afternoon gowns follow this idea, their undergarment being, for instance, some rich, dark mulberry satin, with Russian tunic and blouse of coarse black silk net embroidered in mulberry tones in hand effect.

The spread of the Russian craze has brought the belt back to popularity. Deep toned embroideries are combined with red or black leather and wonderful clasp of beaten gold and silver, and these new fur belts are a conspicuous item of the costume, for they are extremely wide, ranging from three to six inches across. Jewels and emblems belong to the Russian garb, from the clasp at the yoke line to the curious fastenings used down the side front. Dark motifs, looking like oxidized silver and gold, are imbedded in jeweled clasps for the back and front of loose-fitting girdles. A barbaric ornament of dull silver or gold, set with enamel or colored stones is the buckle most worn.

Among the many reasons which explain the popularity of ermine this winter is the remarkable vogue for black and white. Black, of course, is always dignified, and there goes with it an air of refinement which supplies the charm stolen for by all women. But, when a touch of white is added, either as fur, lace or tulle, there is a certain relief which gives an advanced satisfaction. This combination distinguishes many costumes for day and evening wear. It is always in good taste and generally very becoming.

It is reported that Paris has again been conquered by the separate blouse, and when one considers the newest models, whether they be of linen, chamois or of the more intricate combination of lace and chiffon, there is little doubt concerning their justified claims. They are so eminently convenient that American women have always clung to them, and they are now being worn to morning and afternoon toilet, and the sanction of the French will undoubtedly increase their popularity.

It is rumored that in Paris the fashionable dinner frock, which has proven even more acceptable and convenient than was anticipated, will grow shorter as the season advances. While this rage for the sensibly abbreviated skirt has not extended to the reception gown nor the at-home frock, it has penetrated in among such stuffs as rose petals as rainbows are made of. No material, no matter how diaphanous, need be reserved for the long reception gown; short frocks demand all the elegance of the season. The debutante's dress is now beautiful than ever. Silver has touched her white frock and rested there so persistently that the combination has almost become a uniform. White, satin, pure and simple, has declined in favor. It is now draped with the inevitable silver gauze, and again the same moonlight effect is produced by silver tulle over crepe meteor.

A favorite hat for afternoon wear is a combination of tulle and fur, with a huge egrette as trimming. Indeed, the hats are amenable to the latest treatment which may suggest itself to the mind of the great designers. Crown-colored velvet for the full crown of a toque has been advantageously used on a fur trim. A certain relief from the dark colors so popular is thus given, but the band of slank very cleverly keeps the trying white away from the face.

Jewelled, studded and carved pins are at present seen on the heads of nearly every woman who wears a hat, and nearly every woman does. They are very pretty, though expensive, as a matter of course.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

EDUCATION A NECESSITY.

By MARY RUSSELL.

The thousand doors of the old fairy tale is an emblem of the doors that are before the young girl of today.

And she seems to know as little of the treasure that lies back of the mystic gates as did poor little Pigeonette.

Sometimes an older pair of eyes have an X-ray quality and may penetrate to the mystery. Sometimes, but not often, there is the young girl who will listen to the vision as it is revealed by the old, or person. Usually she says: "Oh, don't tell me!"

Don't you see that it is so much more interesting to open the door for one's self?

We are all gamblers with fate in a measure and the poor little girl who makes mistakes in the doors must pay the penalty for her ignorance and heedlessness.

Sometimes the penalty is greater than is deserved and always there is an innocent one who suffers with her. Sometimes she lets out all of the life of the world, and then there is no way of shutting the door. Sometimes she has the vision herself, and then there is a life so beautiful—so pure and perfect that its radiance extends over many heads and makes the world renew its faith and love in all mankind.

In the present day rush for a universal knowledge a lack of thoroughness is one of the greatest ills that escape from behind the closed doors. So many beautiful visions spread over before the girlish eyes—small wonder that in grasping all she loses the best.

Educators say that our educational system fails to educate. It would seem that the blame for that "failure" lies with the older educators themselves, with the school system is in their hands. But any girl that really desires an education may have it.

She has but to resolve to know the thing she studies thoroughly. Spelling is one of the weaknesses of the present system of education. The girl may overcome that difficulty if she will. The dictionary should be her most familiar friend. She should watch herself so that once she looks up a word in the dictionary the meaning of that word will be hers—the spelling will never leave her.

One school in its resolve to overcome this reproach to the school system, began, in the first reader room, to make the children learn to spell two words a week. Every day they were drilled on the spelling and meaning of these two words. This system was carried through all the grades (all the pupils entered the high school). That seems a slow way to learn to spell, but those children learned on an average of 400 words a year and at the same time so fixed the principles of spelling in their minds that it was no effort to know how a word was spelled, even in our very erratic language.

Let the girl of today make up her mind that she will know how to spell, how to write a legible hand and how to work the simpler rules of arithmetic exactly, and she has a foundation for learning that will be invaluable. If the educational system is at fault, let the girl make it right for herself.

She can do it if she will—but she must will it hard enough!

Tenacity of purpose and a right purpose means a conqueror wherever it is found.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema genus are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that closes the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. J. P. A new Edison Phonograph —no less remarkable for its beauty of design and finish than for its perfect sound reproducing qualities.

An opera singer's voice may leave nothing to be desired, while the personality of the artist may lack much. For instance, it is more pleasing to listen to Blanche Arral than many of the other prima donnas, because she is a beautiful woman. So it is with the Amberola. The beauty of its exterior is in perfect keeping with its incomparable tonal qualities. The Amberola is a delight to the eye as well as to the ear. See and hear the Amberola at your dealer's today. TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—

I am 26 years of age. I suffered 9 years ago with a tumor of the left side of my face just in front of the ear and upon consulting a prominent physician of Milwaukee I was told that I would have to be operated on as it was incurable and that by an operation I would be free from all my trouble, and was operated on three different times in a year and a half and this same Doctor said that if I would follow it up with the X-Ray treatment I would come out all right. So when I came to Beloit I took X-Ray treatment here three times a week for seven months.

The left side of my face became so paralyzed that I could not move it and my left eye remained open day and night. Then he told me that the muscles of my face were weak and that I would have to wear glasses, and that they would relieve them. After spending about $260 for all of this guesswork I was worse off than I was before I started.

I was advised by friends to try Raymond Puddicombe's Chiropathic adjustment and by taking their advice went and saw Mr. Puddicombe and I am glad I did for I am now a well woman—not only of the paralyzed condition of my face, but of all my other troubles that most women are subject to. Now this testimonial is not given alone as a financial gain for Mr. Puddicombe, but for suffering humanity's sake as well; if you suffering men and women would only read and reason for yourselves and quit dosing with medicine, and submitting yourselves to those unnecessary operations and go to R. Puddicombe, the Chiropactor, and take Chiropathic adjustment and have the cause of your disease removed, your disease will disappear and you would get well and feel like a human being ought to feel. While taking Chiropathic adjustment I witnessed cases of all kinds of disease get well under Mr. Puddicombe's care. Hoping others will gain from experience, I am, Yours very truly,

MANY MAGAZINES AT
DISPOSAL OF PUBLIC

List of Magazines for Public Use in Reading Rooms at Library. Contains Fifty Publications.
With ever-increasing facilities for the accommodation of the reading public, Janesville has a library of which its citizens can well be proud, and which, compared with the libraries in cities of this size in Wisconsin and elsewhere, ranks among the foremost.
The catalogue of the books now on its shelves is a large one, embracing works on almost any subject desired, and now volumes are continually being secured to augment the number.
What is true of the books is also true of the magazines and similar publications. For those whose time is limited to a few hours a day and who do not care to take the time to read a book, and to those who seek information on the questions of the day, the opportunities afforded them in the reading rooms are great. For waiting away an idle hour there are magazines devoted principally to fiction.
The information-seeker can find almost anything he desires in the daily papers or magazines dealing with questions of the day, politics, religion, science, literature, outdoor sports, and various other topics. The list of this year's magazines which will be placed at the disposal of those who care to look them over comprises fifty of the best known and standard publications of the day. The librarian, Miss Slaythem in alphabetical order, as given

In many persons the least excite-headache. They cannot attend church, theatre, places of amusement, travel, or mingle in a crowd ache. The nerves of the brain are easily excited, and this irritable con-

CENTER

Center, Jan. 19.—Mallman Hungerford of route 17, Evansville, is with us again after three days' vacation last week on account of the terrible condition of the roads across Countyland.

Owing to the weight of the snow on the roof of the old Curtis Parsonage larn, now owned by Julius Jaeger, one of the oldest barns in the community, crushed to the ground Tuesday, pinning his stock to the ground but not killing or injuring them.

Fenertek and Miller delivered their tobacco at Janesville Tuesday.

Wm. Snyder, brother of B. W. Snyder, is here on a visit to relatives.

John Fisher was a Milwaukee visitor the first of the week.

Mrs. Will Dixon and Jay Roberts are sick with the mumps.

Miss Emily Harlow returned to school in Janesville Monday after an absence of four weeks.

Mrs. Frank Davis pleasantly entertained the ladies of the C. & R. club last week Tuesday. The next place of meeting will be at the home of Mrs.
Will Dixon.

Watkin Davis is slowly convalescing.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Roberts attended the funeral of Mrs. Ludden in Janesville Monday.

The dump spell has enabled the tobacco raisers to get their tobacco down and now they have something to keep them busy.

MORE ICE GORGES GIVE WAY.

Flood Loos in Vicinity of Pittsburg
Reaches $300,000.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—Two more ice gorges in the Allegheny river between forty and fifty miles from this city broke and carried with them the fields of ice and snow that have been accumulating back of where until Tuesday night was the Precept gorge.

Loss due to the flood is estimated at $300,000. Three vessels in the local harbor, valued at $125,000, were sunk.

Mines, potteries, tube mills and factories along the Allegheny, Monongahela, Kiskimihus, Youghiogheny and Cheat rivers have closed down, due to high water. Thousands of men are idle as a result. Traffic on steam roads entering Pittsburg along the river fronts is demoralized.

LIFE INSURANCE MEN MEET.

Gov. Hughes Declares His Faith in American Institution.

Washington, Jan. 20.—At the third annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents today Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York addressed the executive officers of the life insurance companies, representing 20,000,000 policyholders and nearly $4,000,000,000 of assets, declaring his faith in the insurance as an American institution.

He insisted that no life insurance organization which is honest and economic in its management need fear state control nor expect to suffer from legislation.

mittees, representing union employes of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern and the Big Four railway systems, arrived here to confer with the manage-wage schedules. The committees represent the firemen and engineers, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Glickrist Oath is Seized.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 20.—Following the appointment of the receiver in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Glickrist Transportation Company, United States Marshal H. A. Wolf today seized thirteen boats belonging to the company, which are in Milwaukee harbor, on writs of attachment secured by creditors.

Deadly Work of Opium.

A prominent historian computes
the total death toll of the civil war in battle and hospital at 1,000,000 lives. There have been years in Chinese history when opium has claimed as many victims in a single year.—Putnam's Magazine.

AL KAUFMANN BEATS
O'BRIEN IN FIVE ROUNDS

Only His Keen Wits and Slowness of Californian Saves
Jack.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 20.—Jack O'Brien was beaten by youth, strength and weight in his bout with Al Kaufmann at the National Athletic club, but he made a wonderful showing, and only his ring generalship pulled him through. Even when O'Brien seemed sure to go out he kept his wits about him and made Kaufmann miss many intended knock-out punches. O'Brien could not have lasted much longer.

Kaufmann may have said to have won, but he did just fail to put the elusive O'Brien out. It was because of Kaufmann's slowness that O'Brien managed to escape. At the end of the fight the Californian was leg and arm weary and his face crimson from cuts.

Kaufmann was so slow that the crowd thought he was coming up for O'Brien's benefit and it gave vent to his displeasure by hissing and cat-calling.

O'Brien clearly showed that he is all in as a fighter. He had none of his old speed and wobbled after every mixup. When Kaufmann did manage to connect solidly, he turned tall and reared round the ring, grabbing at the ropes at times to help in the matter of speed. He ducked and made Kaufmann miss a great deal toward the end. Kaufmann floored O'Brien with a snappy right hander on the jaw at the beginning of the fourth round, but John bobbed up serenely and jabbed Kaufmann away.

WILL OPPOSE MINERS' DEMAND.

Increase in Wages Will Be Fought by Pennsylvania Operators.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 20.—Any demand for an increase in wages that may be made by the miners in central Pennsylvania will be opposed, was the decision reached by the executive committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators' association for central Pennay-vania, which is holding meetings in this city to consider the agreements for the coming year. The association includes nearly all the operators in the central soft coal field of Pennay-vania, producing 30,000,000 tons of coal annually and employing about 40,000 men.

This is in view of the declaration made at the mine workers' convention at Indianapolis that a demand for an increase in wages will be made.

Newspaper Man's Wife Suicide.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 20.—Mrs. R. E.
Bradley, wife of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch's general manager, formerly a prominent newspaper man of Chicago, committed suicide by shooting herself in a rooming house at 3025
Lucas avenue, this city.

WISCONSIN PAPERMAKER DIES.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 20.—William Beverly Murphy, 52 years old, one of the best-known paper manufacturers in the middle west, died from cancer of the stomach, after a long illness.

ROOSEVELT FOR CANNON'S JOB?

Report Says Ex-President May Seek House Speakership.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Roosevelt for speaker of the house, of representatives. This is the latest decision reached as to "What shall be done with our ex-president?" according to a report that has spread among members of congress.

It is even said that Mr. Roosevelt has agreed to run for congress in the first district of New York state, in which Oyster Bay, his home is located.
The understanding that he will be elected to the speakership if he runs is, declared, insisted on by Mr. Roosevelt.

Representative William W. Coker of the first district, according to the report is willing to step down and out in favor of Mr. Roosevelt.

SELLS HIS LARYNX AND LUNGS.

Organs, After Death, Go to Chicago
Medical College.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—Bert Morphy of Chicago, the singer famous for his ability to make himself heard above the playing of a band out of doors, has sold his larynx and lungs to the Bennett Medical college of Chicago, "in the interests of science."

The organs, of course, are to be delivered after death. The bargain was made in Detroit.

Morphy once was in the last stages of consumption. Dr. Blair advised him to try outdoor singing. It cured him by forming some sort of a barrier between the healthy part of the lungs and the diseased part.

Nothing Doing.

"Miss Mylums, Angeline," he pleaded, "could you, oh, could you marry a poor, penniless chap like me?" "Sure I could," replied the fair Angeline, coldly, "but let me inform you right here and now that I'm not going to."

Danderine

GROWS HAIR
and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to its former length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is a product of the scalp and simply dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention it merits. It is to be expected, it would do so, that the scalp is the soil in which the hair grows and must receive the attention it merits to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when hardness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (in a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and enrich the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowledge of Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhibiting and the producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

CHAPTER III.

THE managing editor again began to weigh just what significance the demand of Dupuy had. He directed his glance at him fixedly, and a long pause ensued after the lawyer lobbyist's abrupt demand that Wheeler Brand be discharged from the Advance.

Dupuy returned McHenry's stare, and his discerning eye and brain enabled him to read the workings of McHenry's mind. He felt instinctively as he glared at McHenry that he had the managing editor "on the run." During the period of the insurance company's ownership there had been no doubt that the decision of the managing editor of the Advance would have been in favor of Dupuy and his demand for the discharge of Wheeler Brand. And the lawyer, like McHenry, knew nothing of the new owner that would change the attitude of the paper.

Dupuy was right in his estimate of McHenry's weakness. The lawyer lobbyist was playing in rare fortune, indeed, to discover in his opponent a man who dared not stand for the right. He well knew that he would not find the same sort of man in a position of importance in many other newspapers of the land. Well, too, did he know "the power of the press" throughout all America, for he had learned at bitter cost that it was the foe of all the Ed Dupuys and all those that employed them to serve their ends.

Finally McHenry spoke in answer to Dupuy's demand.

"Let us give Brand one more chance," protested McHenry. "I'll put him on baseball or water front. Come, now."

"I will be candid with you. I was instructed to make an example of somebody for this morning's story. Perhaps, though, a good handling over night do for this time. Call him in now. It's his last chance."

A boy entered.

"Ask Mr. Brand to step in,"

"I'd rather take a kicking than do this," protested McHenry.

Dupuy was unimpressed.

"Well, he's only got himself to thank," he snorted.

Wheeler Brand came in.

"Mr. Brand," began the managing editor, "there is a kick being made on the Hartley story of this morning."

"Yes, sir; I suppose so," Brand looked up and saw Dupuy, and the reporter's face showed that he understood.

"I forward the kick to you, indorsing it O. K.," said McHenry. "In other words, the kick goes."

"Why, what?"

"This is a practical world," interrupted Dupuy.

Brand grew bitter, for well he knew the practices of Dupuy.

"Oh, yes; I know the practice—a world of live and let live. We must be very careful before imputing motives, eh, Mr. Dupuy? Does not the good book say, 'Let him that is without sin among you cast the first stone at United States Judges'?"

"Wheeler, Wheeler," cried McHenry. "we only ask you in to talk it over calmly."

"That man has hit me in the dark before," exclaimed Brand. "This is the first time that he has come into the light."

"I desire to say that my clients," put in Dupuy, "like a great many other of the—uh—subscribers—to this paper, were disappointed at what they conceived to be an unwarranted attack full of insinuations about one of the most distinguished members of the United States bench, and they wish merely as readers of the paper to express the hope that nothing of the sort will occur again, in which case they are willing to overlook this morning's article entirely—to, in fact, regard it merely as a mistake, a mistake made without malice."

"You mean I am to have another chance to hold my job if I'll be good from now on?" asked Brand.

Dupuy once more became complacent.

"Such, I believe, is Mr. McHenry's decision," he announced calmly.

"You certainly have your gall, Dupuy," cried Brand in menacing tones.

"YES; IT WAS THE STREET CAR STRIKE, AND YOU AND JUDGE HARTLEY SENT JERRY DOLAN TO JAIL."

"To think you can muzzle me for $40 a week, I've paid more than that for the privilege of fighting you."

The lawyer turned quickly to the managing editor.

"You better let him go, McHenry," he suggested. "He's a crank."

Wheeler Brand was amazed at the way in which McHenry allowed Dupuy to influence him.

"Does he give you orders?" he asked meaningfully of the managing editor.

"Yes, my boy; he does, and I accept your resignation."

"The reporter was by no means daunted by his discharge.

"I'm sorry for you," he cried, inclining toward McHenry.

Dupuy laughed significantly.

"Reserve your sympathy for yourself, young man," he advised the young newspaper writer.

"Reserve your sympathy for Hartley; he'll need it before long," was his cutting retort.

"Oh; is that so?" sneered Dupuy.

"Go west and grow up with the country, for if you, hanging around here to hurt Hartley, don't forget that criminal libel is punishable with arrest."

"Sorry, old man," spoke McHenry kindly. "If I didn't have a family I'd go west with you."

"It isn't for men having families," put in Dupuy philosophically. "there'd be a revolution."

Brand straightened up and, with a contemptuous expression on his face, started toward the door.

"You've got more heart than sense, McHenry," was the parting shot which he hurled at the managing editor.

"Pretty tough on a reporter to fire him for 'scooping' the town on a libel story," said the managing editor.

"Oh, please," granted Dupuy.

A boy entered with a card. Dupuy crossed to a chair and picked up his overcoat.

"Mr. Nolan, sir," the lad announced, with an amusing grimace. "He's the new boss, and he's got a couple of mitts on 'im like Jim Jeffries. Gee, but I'll bet Nolan is there with the wallop, all right."

Dupuy put his overcoat back on the chair. His luck was still holding good, he congratulated himself. There was a chance to make the acquaintance of the new owner of the influential Advance, an opportunity to pave the way possibly to secure future favors from him for his clients when emergencies arose. Needless to say, emergencies frequently arose to disturb the peace of mind of the varieties of people who sought the versatile aid of Mr. Ed Dupuy. He turned to face McHenry and said:

"Oh, the new owner! I'd like to meet him. If you don't object I'll meet him. If you don't object I'll meet him. If you don't object I'll meet him."

Dupuy seated himself at the extreme left hand corner of the office close to the rack containing files of the daily papers. He took down a file and began to read. McHenry, laughing at the patent anxiety of the lawyer to meet Nolan, put on his coat.

A heavy step was heard, and the bulky form of the new owner of the Advance stood before the managing editor.

"I am Mr. McHenry," explained the latter.

"I am Mike Nolan," the newcomer remarked bluntly.

At the sound of the big man's big voice Dupuy, whom Nolan had not noticed in the corner, started and turned his head to gain a better view of him. There was something familiar in the ring of that voice. There was something familiar in the features and the pose of Mr. Mike Nolan. Surely he had met him somewhere. He pondered and pondered and finally gave up the problem in disgust.

"This is a nice looking place you've got here," he remarked to McHenry.

"That you've got, sir."

A feminine voice from the outer hallway was heard to exclaim breathlessly, "I refuse to climb another step."

McHenry turned inquiringly, whereupon Nolan explained: "My family's just outside. I wanted them to see me take possession." His voice was tinged with pride. He stepped to the door. "Come in, mother," he called gayly. Mrs. Nolan, a tall, well-proportioned brunette attired in the past-

Best of imported garments, entered the managing editor's office with a pronounced flourish, followed by the two Nolan children, Sylvester and Phyllis—the son about twenty-two years old and the daughter probably a year or two younger. "Oh, mercy, them stairs!" exclaimed the mother, endeavoring to catch her breath. Nolan presented his wife and son to McHenry. Mrs. Nolan called to Phyllis to draw near. "This is my daughter, Phyllis," she said. "She went to Bryn Mawr." Phyllis and the managing editor exchanged greetings. "My son, Sylvester," went on the mother proudly, "went to Harvard."

"Oh, you're a Harvard man!" spoke McHenry to Sylvester. "What class?"

The son, togged in the latest fashion man effects in the line of sporty clothes and drawing on an unlighted cigarette, replied, "1909, 1910, 1911."

Mrs. Nolan pointed at a pile of papers lying on a small desk. "I don't see how you ever got time to read 'em all," she addressed McHenry.

"Oh, I read fifty or sixty a day. We've got to know what the other fellows are doing."

"That's just like me," she responded smoothly. "I always like to know what everybody else is doing, too."

She went on. "I think what journalism needs is a sort of feminine, refining influence. It seems you don't publish anything now but crime, divorces and people's troubles." She laughed.

"Oh, you wouldn't want to read every day that Mr. and Mrs. James Jones were living happily together. You're only interested when they're unhappy."

"Still I'd like to read once in a while that somebody else was happy, at least for a little while."

It was McHenry's turn to laugh.

"Would you like to look over the plant, Mrs. Nolan?" he asked.

To be continued.

The Best of Everything

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, January 20, 1870.—Jottings.—A large grey wolf was killed near Maxonsville last week by a young man after a desperate fight. The animal was first wounded by a shot and then clubbed to death with the gun.

Stoller's horse took a lively exercise yesterday, upsetting the sleigh and spilling the occupants, and finally bringing up near the gas works, without doing any further damage.

Many of our sportsmen are devoting their time to fox-hunting this winter. That species of game is quite plentiful in this vicinity.

Cornelius Stout, residing on High street in the 4th Ward, received a kick of no positive character from a horse yesterday, that it broke his right arm in two places above the elbow.

A firm in this city is about shipping a car load of April pigs, none of which weigh less than 300 pounds. It is said to be one of the finest lots of pork ever sent from this market.

An electrical child, aged ten months, is reported by the French papers to have died near Lyons. This infant, it is stated, was so charged with electricity that every person who approached it received a sharp shock. The child passed away quietly and painlessly, but at the instant of death a luminous effluvia emanated from the body and continued several minutes. The foreign medical journals say that this case is unprecedented in the history of science.

IMMENSE ARMY JOINS IN FOOD TRUST FIGHT

New Boycott League, Indorsed by Taft, is Swamped with Applications.

Washington, Jan. 20.—After the first meeting of the board of directors of the Anti-Food Trust league, recently organized to fight by boycott high food prices, it was announced that applications for 200,000 membership cards.

In addition to numerous individual applications, various organizations have asked for membership blanks to be distributed to their members.

Among the organizations which have written for application cards are the Traveling Men's association, the Central Labor union of this city, the Housekeepers' alliance, and the League of American Penwomen.

A letter has been received from President Taft, in which he indorses the movement.

He expressed his conviction that food prices are too high and that any measure that will bring about a general lowering of prices are to be highly desired. He expressed his entire approval of the crusade undertaken by the organization and offers to aid the work in any way in his power.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 20.—In the very shadow of the greatest packing houses of the middle west, union labor in Omaha formed anti-meat eating clubs as a protest against the present prices of fresh meat. Two thousand union labor men signed the agreement and the promoters of the strike expect every union man in the city, as well as thousands of non-union workmen, to at once add their names to the list.

day's developments in the campaign of Cleveland shop workers to force down the price of meat by abstaining for 30 days from the purchase of meat.

$23,000 EMBEZZLER RETURNS.

Abandoning Pittsburg Church Treasurer Applies Penitence at Jail.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—Without a cent, broken in heart and health as well as pocket, W. E. Lilley, absconding official from the Presbyterian general assembly of Pennsylvania, appeared at the county jail in Pittsburg to give himself up.

A warrant on charge of embezzlement was sworn out against him sometime since but as the jail authorities had not the warrant they refused to receive him. Mr. Lilley was taken to the home of Attorney Willis C. Booth, counsel for the Presbyterian presbytery where he spent the night.

Mr. Lilley admits a shortage of $10,500 but says he never profited one cent's worth and promises one of the sessions of a life time when the case comes to trial.

CHARGE THEY PROLONG STRIKE.

Counsel for Shirtwaist Makers Say Society Women Incite Girls.

New York, Jan. 20.—The well-known society women, including Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Miss Anne Morgan and Miss Inez Milholland, who have espoused the cause of the shirtwaist strikers, were charged directly before Justice Gerard in the supreme court, with having prolonged the struggle by inciting the girl strikers to desperate and vicious actions.

Attorney Charles Dushkind, counsel for two of the shirtwaist manufacturers, who have secured a temporary injunction against the strikers proffered these charges in connection with his argument in favor of having

SAYS BUYERS BLOCK FIGHT.

Dr. Wright Declares Cattlemen Stop Efforts to Eradicate Tuberculosis.

Vanalia, Ill., Jan. 20.—At the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Illinois State Dairymen's association, Dr. J. N. Wright, state veterinarian of Illinois, discussed tuberculosis as affecting cattle, and charged that the cattlemen in the state had paid attorneys, who were attempting to block the efforts of the association to eradicate tuberculosis from Illinois herds. He said unscrupulous persons were using Illinois as a dumping ground for diseased cattle purchased in other states. He urged a law to prevent this.

PUT CURB ON STATEHOOD BILL.

No New Stars to Flag Until Late Next Year.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The senate plans to block statehood and it is now probable that no new stars will be added to the American flag before the summer of 1911. The plan is now under consideration in the senate committee on territories. The program is said to have the indorsement of President Taft. It provides for the reporting of an entirely new bill for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as states.

The Hamilton bill, which was passed by the house, is declared to be objectionable to the senate.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 20.—After an interview with Natalie Christy, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, by Probate Judge White both sides rested in the suit of Mrs. Christy to obtain possession of the little girl.

A spanking administered to Mrs. Christy by her husband, which Mrs. Christy received in fairly good nature, was detailed by Miss Rose Christy, the artist's sister. Miss Christy said the spanking followed a refusal by the artist's wife to go to bed when told.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, and both need the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

$850,000 GONE; A TRIO ACCUSED

WESTERN INDIANA RAILROAD SUES THREE PROMINENT CHICAGO MEN.

STATE'S ATTORNEY ACTIVE

Begins Inquiry Into Charges Filed Against Former President of Road and Two Associates—Shady Real Estate Deals Involved.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—John C. Fetzer, one of Chicago's best known financiers and men of affairs; Benjamin Thomas, former president of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company; and Charles H. Kappes, former real estate agent of the railroad company, stand by the allegations in a sensational bill filed in the circuit court, accused of having defrauded the Chicago & Western Indiana corporation out of a huge sum. The amount named in the bill is $850,000.

State's Attorney Begins Inquiry

At the request of the directors of this company State's Attorney Wayne immediately began an investigation of the charges as were contained in the bill and it is believed, that his inquiry will lead to the placing of the case before the grand jury and the arrest of the three men asked for.

The allegations contained in the bill charge that Fetzer, acting as agent in the purchase of real estate, needed by the railroad to enlarge its terminal facilities, bought the property at low figure and then through a series of manipulations, consigned it to the company at greatly increased values, dividing the accruing profits with the other two men.

An accounting from Fetzer, Thomas and Kappes is asked for by the bill filed in order that the amount actually paid for the several pieces of property may be determined.

FIVE LEAP TO DEATH IN FIRE.

Shirtwaist Makers. Many of Them Girls, Become Paralyzed Stricken.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 20.—Five persons, four girls and one man, leaped to their death in a panic caused by a fire in the four-story factory building at 208-10 Chancery street. Five others received probably fatal injuries and many more were less seriously hurt.

Nearly all of the dead and severely injured were employed in the shirtwaist factory of Joseph Chachkin, on the fourth floor of the building. Chachkin was injured, one of his daughters is dead and another dying. Chachkin's force of operators was greatly reduced owing to the shirtwaist strike. Otherwise the number of fatalities probably would have been greater.

The flames originated in the elevator shaft supposedly, through the short circuiting of the electric motor.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. DUTLER, A. M., M. D.

YOUR HEALTH WILL NOT TAKE CARE OF ITSELF.

You must take care of it. The weeds in your garden will grow faster than the vegetables or flowers if you do not cultivate the ground. To have a good garden you must attend to it; to have good health you must give a reasonable amount of care to yourself; you must form habits of correct living. There are physical and ethical methods of keeping the mind and body in good condition. Nearly everyone is familiar with the physical means of keeping well. The trouble is too few people practice what they know to be conducive to health. There are more persons who neglect or are ignorant of the ethical methods. You should always do your duty; neglect of duty engenders fear, disappointment, discontent, worry and discouragement. Cultivate cheerfulness, optimism and love. Do your work with a light heart, and love your work. If things come into your life that you cannot understand, and that annoy you, wait and trust, be calm and do not allow yourself to fret about any unsolvable mystery or unavoidable circumstance. Have faith that you will find a pathway out of your difficulties and you will find it.
